George peered out of his window. Looking up at him was his dragon. He had a worried look in his yellow eye. George threw a blanket around his shoulders and climbed out on to the dragon's neck.

He clung tightly as they were carried on the North Wind to a land that was neither Here nor There.

George entered the castle alone. He came to a courtyard where a soot-black dragon stood guard. George sneaked past, keeping to the shadows.

He found a staircase that wound its way up through the heart of the castle. At the top of the stairs was a heavy wooden door. George pushed it open.
