Woozy the Wizard

A Broom to Go Zoom

FABER & FABER

In the faraway village of Snottingham Sneeze Lived a wizard named Woozy who breezed through the trees.

Up high on his broomstick he'd flit and he'd fly,
With his Pig at his side as he sailed through the sky.

Woozy's broom seemed just right - not too small, not too big,
With a seat for himself and a perch for his Pig.

But still, it was old,
and was mended in places
With oodles of noodles and liquorice laces.

And it looked sort of tattered
and battered and rusty,
So, 'Pig,' Woozy said,
'though it's good and it's trusty,

'I need something speedy,
I need something slicker,
'I need a new broom that will make us fly quicker.'

Then one sunny day

Woozy screeched to a stop

When he saw a large sign saying,

'Shiny New Shop'.

Underneath, in big letters and twinkling pink lights

Was an advert that said:

TAKE YOUR LIFE TO NEW HEIGHTS.

IMPROVE WITH A HOOVER:

THEY'RE BETTER THAN BROOMS!

FLY ONE TODAY AND THEN

WATCH HOW IT ZOOMS!

Woozy shot in through the shop's open door Calling, 'Pig, come inside.
I can't wait any more!'

The hoover had gadgets and nozzles and knobs,
And thingummyjigs that did all sorts of jobs.
