For the spooktacular Mark Hawkins, a fabulous fiend and a magician of a musician – JC

For Anne, my wife and my creative adviser, who has the uncanny knack of knowing which of my lines are duff ones, sometimes even before I've written them. Spooky, eh? – BM

DON'T READ THIS BOOK

This book may well disturb you, it will creep into your dreams,
for nothing you read in this book is ever quite the way it seems.

This book may well reveal unpleasant things about yourself.
If I were you I think I'd leave it up there on the shelf.

It's a wild and upsetting read from first page to the last,
a wrong-side-of-the-road trip
as strange ideas slip past.

You'd be far better off not knowing about the horrors hidden within.
It's an open tomb, graveyard gloom,
it's sorrow and it's sin.

Your parents will be worried
if they see you sneaking a look.
Your teacher will advise you to read
any other kind of book.

So just leave it, don't be tempted, don't give it a second look.
You're far too nice a person to read such an alarming book.

A GOOD SCARY POEM NEEDS . . .

A haunted house,

a pattering mouse.

A spooky feeling,

a spider-webbed ceiling.

A squeaking door,

a creaking floor.

A swooping bat,

the eyes of a cat.

A dreadful dream,

a distant scream.

A ghost that goes 'BOO'

and You!

THE FEAR

I am the footsteps that crackle on gravel and the sudden chill that's hard to explain.
I am the figure seen flitting through doorways and the noisy rattle of a loose windowpane.

I am the scream that wakes you at night with the thought, was it real or a dream?
I am the quickening thud of your heart and the feeling things aren't what they seem.

I am the slam of a door blown shut when there isn't even a breeze and the total and absolute certainty that you just heard someone sneeze.

I am the midnight visitor,
the knock when there's no one there.
I am the ceiling creaking and the soft footfall on your stair.

I am the shadows that dance on your wall and the phantoms that float through your head.
And I am the fear that you feel each night
as you wriggle down deep in your bed.

Brian Moses

GHOSTLY BUSINESS

Have you ever seen a ghost?

A what?

A ghost!

Pardon?

A grey ghost?

Sorry?

A gruesome grey ghost?

Errr . . . ?

A horribly huge, gruesome grey ghost?

Umm . . . ?

An utterly ugly, horribly huge, gruesome grey ghost?

Why?

There's one behind yooooooooooooooooou!

James Carter

GHOSTS OF THE LONDON UNDERGROUND

In the subway tunnels
dying to be found,
on the Circle Line
going round and round,
in the wail of the wind,
a peculiar sound,
these ghosts
of the London Underground.

Down, deep down, down deep underground
these ghosts of the London Underground.

And maybe you'll find
you can see right through the passenger sitting opposite you,
or a skull appears
from beneath a hood
and you really wish
you were made of wood,
that you didn't see
what you think you did
and all these horrors
were still well hid.

Down, deep down, down deep underground
with ghosts of the London Underground.

No ticket needed,
 you travel free
in the freakiest, scariest company.
Stand clear of the doors,
 we're about to depart,
so block up your ears
 and hope that your heart is strong enough
 to survive the ride,
we're taking a trip
 to the other side.

Down, deep down, down deep underground
with ghosts of the London Underground.

And the tunnels echo
 with demonic screams
that chill your blood
 and drill into your dreams.
And you can imagine
 only too well
how these tunnels might lead you STRAIGHT INTO HELL . . .

Down, deep down, down deep underground
Down, deep down, down deep underground
Down, deep down, down deep underground
these ghosts of the London Underground.

these ghosts . . .

these ghosts . . .

these ghosts . . .
