

Opening extract from

Tom's Sunflower

Written by

Hilary Robinson

Illustrated by

Mandy Stanley

Published by

Strauss House Productions

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

Lovereading4kids.co.uk

Words by Hilary Robinson

www.hilaryrobinson.co.uk

Pictures by Mandy Stanley

www.mandystanley.com

STRAUSS HOUSE PRODUCTIONS

www.strausshouseproductions.com

www.thecoppertree.org

First published in Great Britain 2015

Text copyright © Hilary Robinson 2015

Illustrations copyright © Mandy Stanley 2015

Hilary Robinson and Mandy Stanley have asserted their rights to be identified as the author and illustrator of this work under the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act, 1988

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

All rights reserved. ISBN-13: 978-0957124547

Printed in the UK

We're turning our classroom into a theatre because it's Skye and Amber's turn for 'Show and Tell'. Skye and Amber move about a lot with a travelling theatre so sometimes they come to our school and sometimes they go to other schools.

It's Mr Davis's turn soon. We're hoping he might tell us what his first name is.

Barnie

Hana

Albie

Olivia

Erika

Amber

Amber

Skye

Rupal

Skye

Holly

Jake

Me (Olivia)

Alfie

Skye and Amber live in a caravan with bunk beds and their theatre is an old circus tent. Amber told me once that she always had a wobbly tummy when she felt a bit upset or when she had to start a new school again.

Skye
Amber

We all painted faces on wooden spoons for a puppet show but Hana didn't want to do it.

Mr Davis said that Hana was a bit sad at the moment. Hana talks to Mr Davis because he always says, 'a problem shared is a problem halved'.

Hana is sad because her mum and dad have split up and are going to live in different places.

At break, Alfie Tate and I played in the sandpit with Hana.

