HOW TO USE THIS JOURNAL

1 You're off to explore our wide, wonderful world. You need a journal to make sure you never, ever forget the adventures ahead!

2 Pick up a pen and make a start by filling in your name and where you're going on the first page. Then explore your journal.

There's loads of room to record your most exciting moments, the food you eat, people you meet, places you see, and what makes you giggle, gasp or groan.

There are suggestions on the left-hand pages to help you, but you can write whatever you like. It's your journal!

Turn to the back of your journal and watch the green rectangle as you flick toward the front. See how we did that?

The white rectangle above is just ready and waiting for your own awesome animation.

3 They say a picture's worth a thousand words and you're sure to be taking and drawing some, but there are other things that will bring memories flooding back in the future.

Hang on to tickets, leaflets, and all the bits and pieces you pick up along the way. The elastic strap will keep them safe between the pages, whether you're trekking through the jungle or exploring a city.

And even when you're home again, in these pages your trip will go on for ever.

Have you been happy today, whatever the weather?

Even if you stay at home, you will travel around the Sun each year.

WEATHER WATCH

Good or bad, the weather can be a sizzling surprise or a shivering shock. Put an X in a circle under one or more of these symbols each day. And make a note of the best and worst of the trip.

"Back-stroke, sir."

BEST MEAL OUT

Menu

It might be a picnic in the park or a three-course feast. What did you eat for your best meal out and about? And if you really are crossing the Sahara by camel without any chance of dainty dining, this is the place to imagine the meal of your dreams.
