

LoveReading4kids.co.uk is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy
and fun

Opening extract from First Book about the Orchestra

Written by Sam Taplin
Illustrated by Sean Longcroft

Published by Usborne Publishing Ltd

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

Have you ever heard an orchestra?
It's made up of lots of different musicians, but they all play at the same time to make one amazing big sound.

Before they start, everybody tunes up to get ready. It sounds like this. → ○

Here are some of the wind musicians rehearsing. They play their instruments by blowing into them.

Now listen to some of the strings.
You play them with a stick called a bow.

These people are playing violins.

These are violas – slightly bigger than a violin.

There are bigger stringed instruments too. They make lower sounds, like this.

These are cellos...

...and these are double basses.

All the musicians have finished rehearsing and it's time for the whole orchestra to play a concert.

The conductor stands at the front to help everyone play at the same time.

The audience goes quiet, he raises his hands, and then...

Scan the code to hear this piece of music all the way through.