

Lovereading4kids.co.uk is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy and fun

Opening extract from

Three Little Pigs

Written by

Stephen Tucker

Illustrated by

Nick Sharratt

Published by

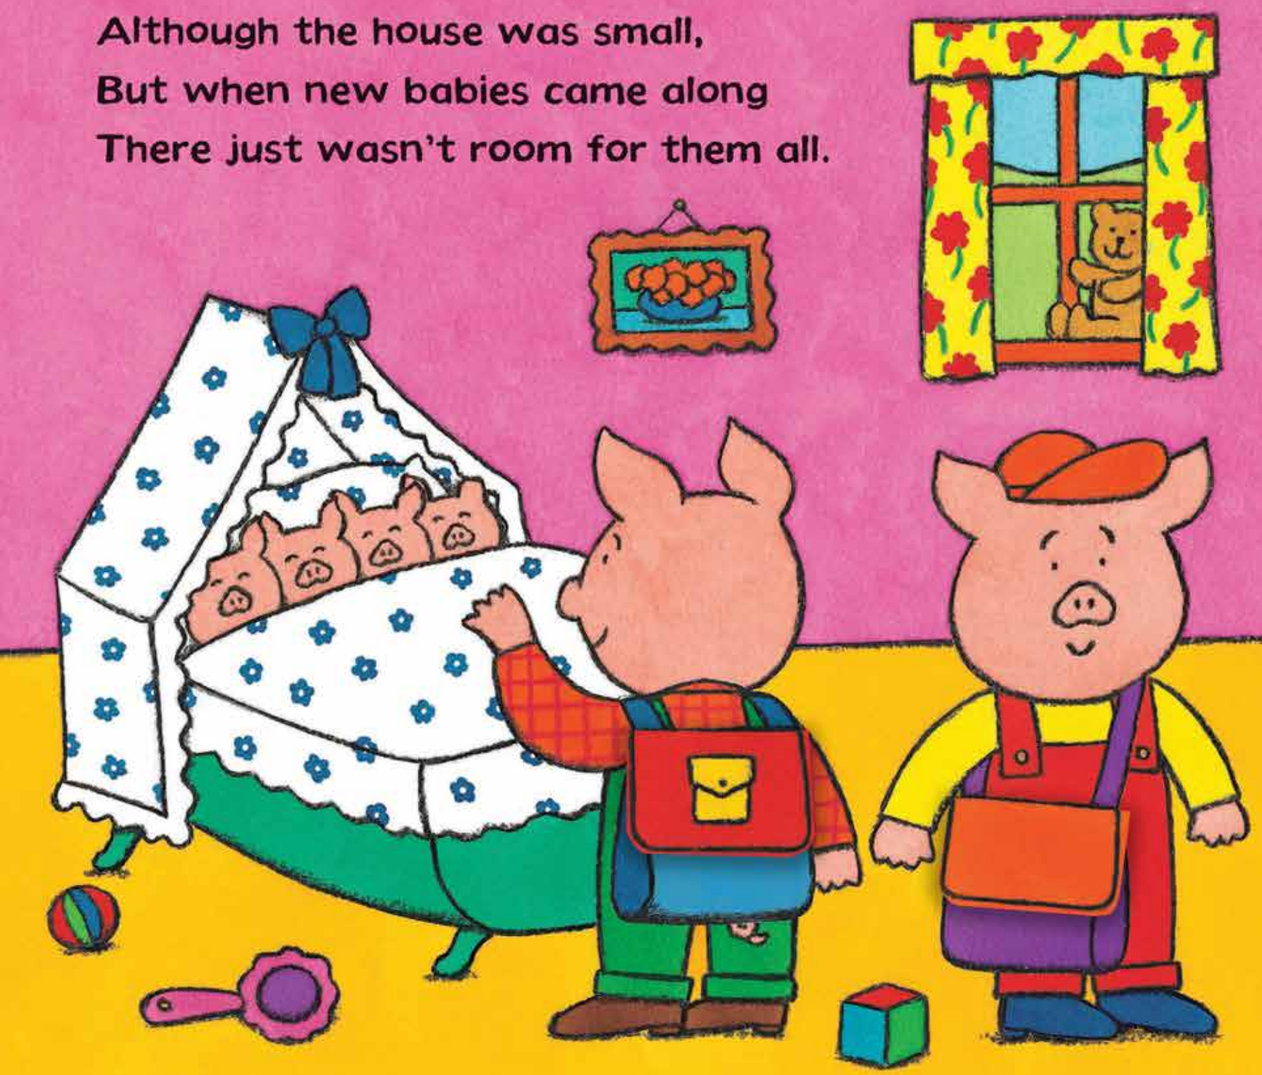

Macmillan Children's Books

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

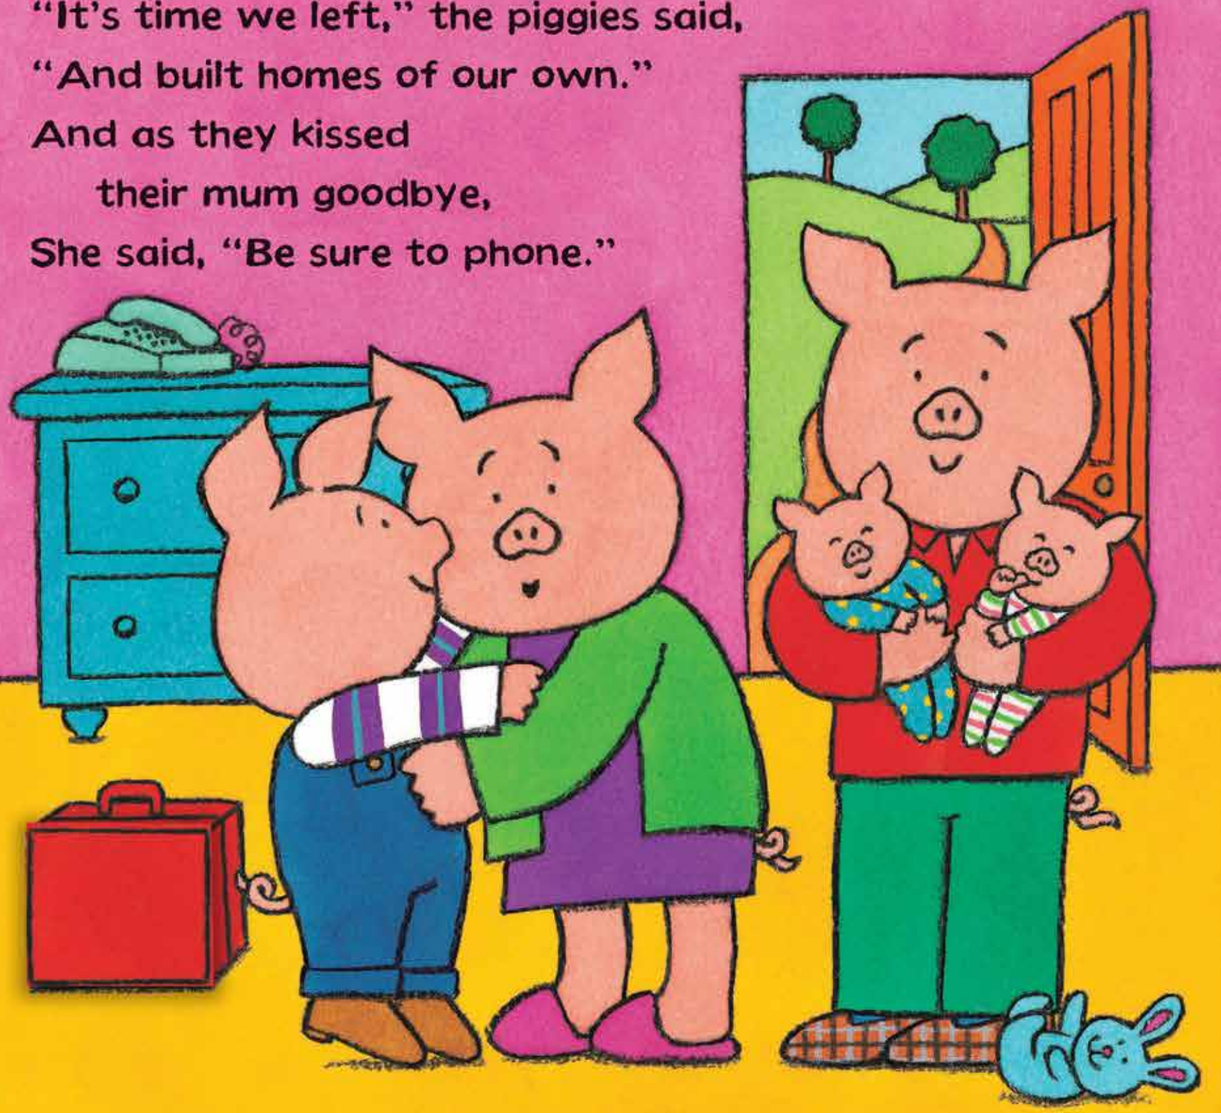

Please print off and read at your leisure.

Lovereading4kids.co.uk

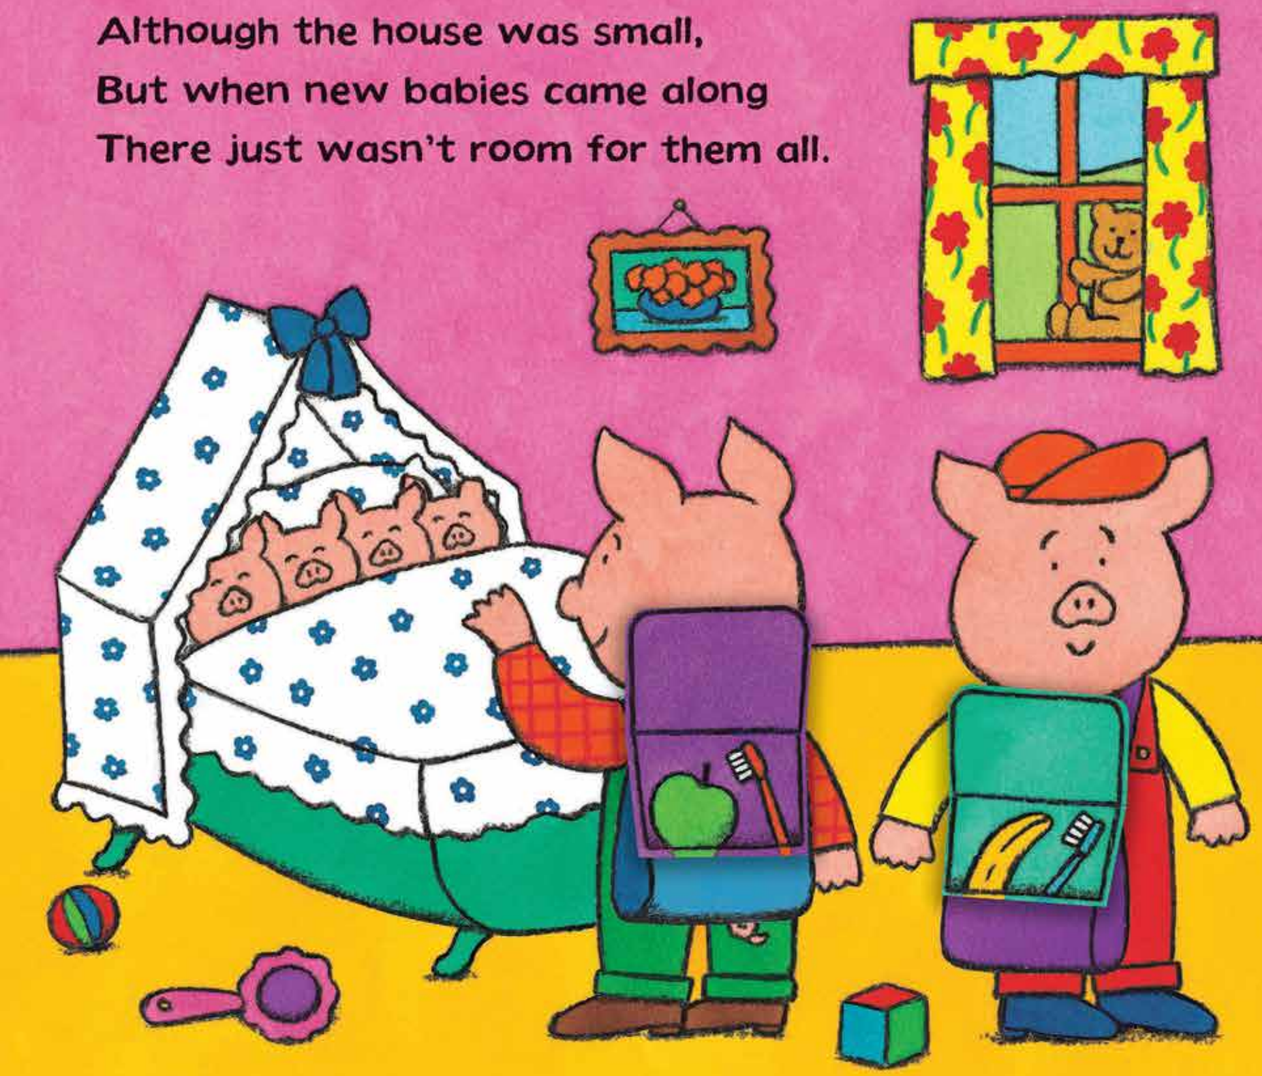

The three little pigs liked living at home
Although the house was small,
But when new babies came along
There just wasn't room for them all.

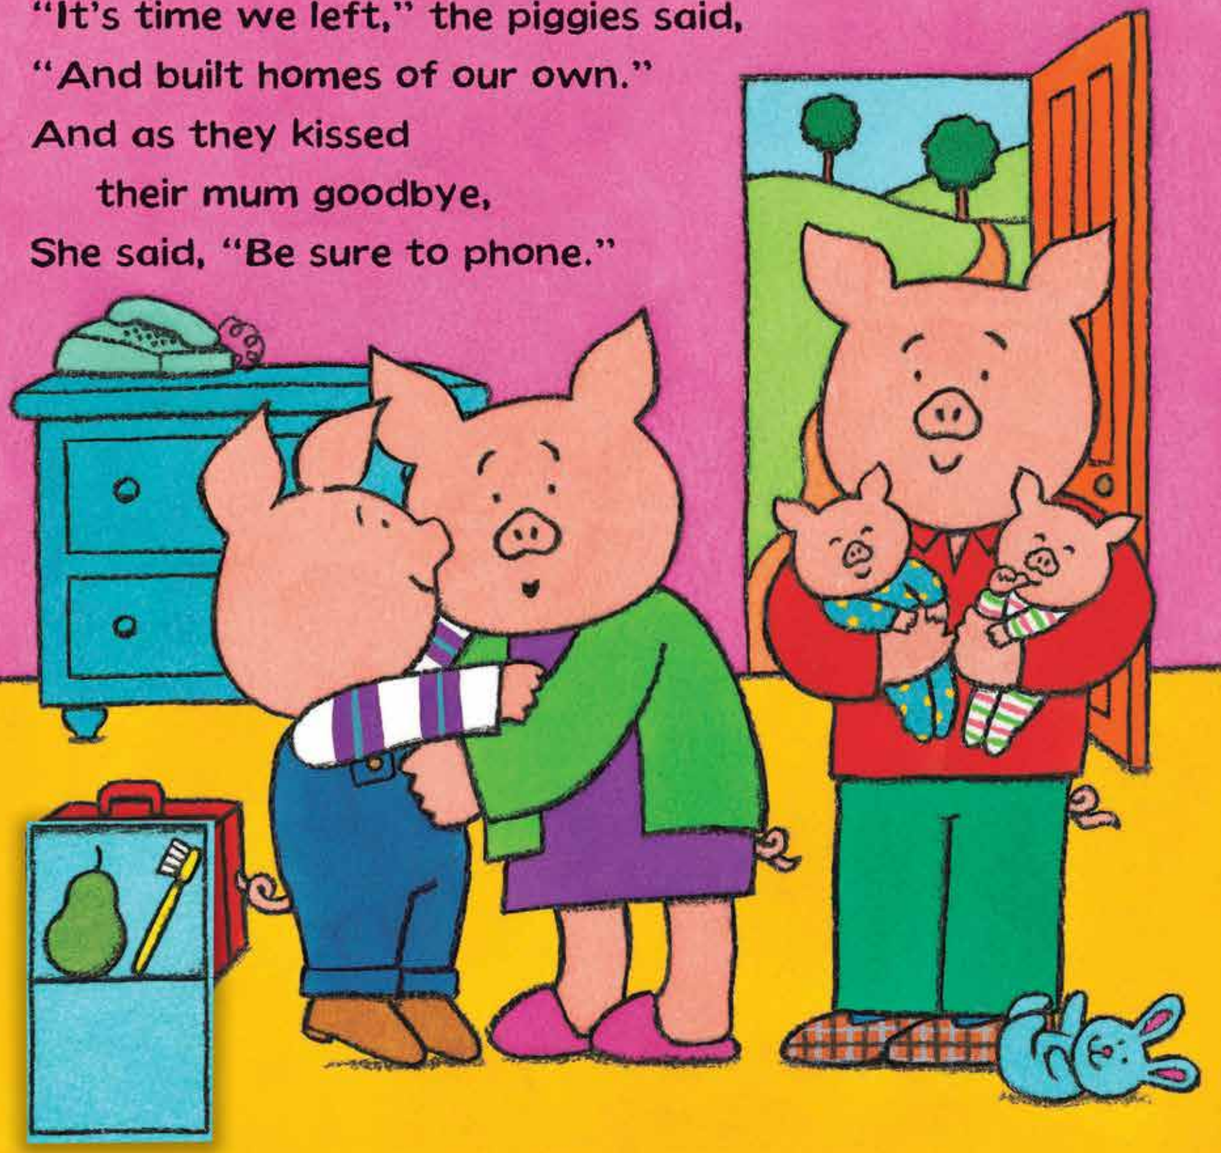

"It's time we left," the piggies said,
"And built homes of our own."
And as they kissed
their mum goodbye,
She said, "Be sure to phone."

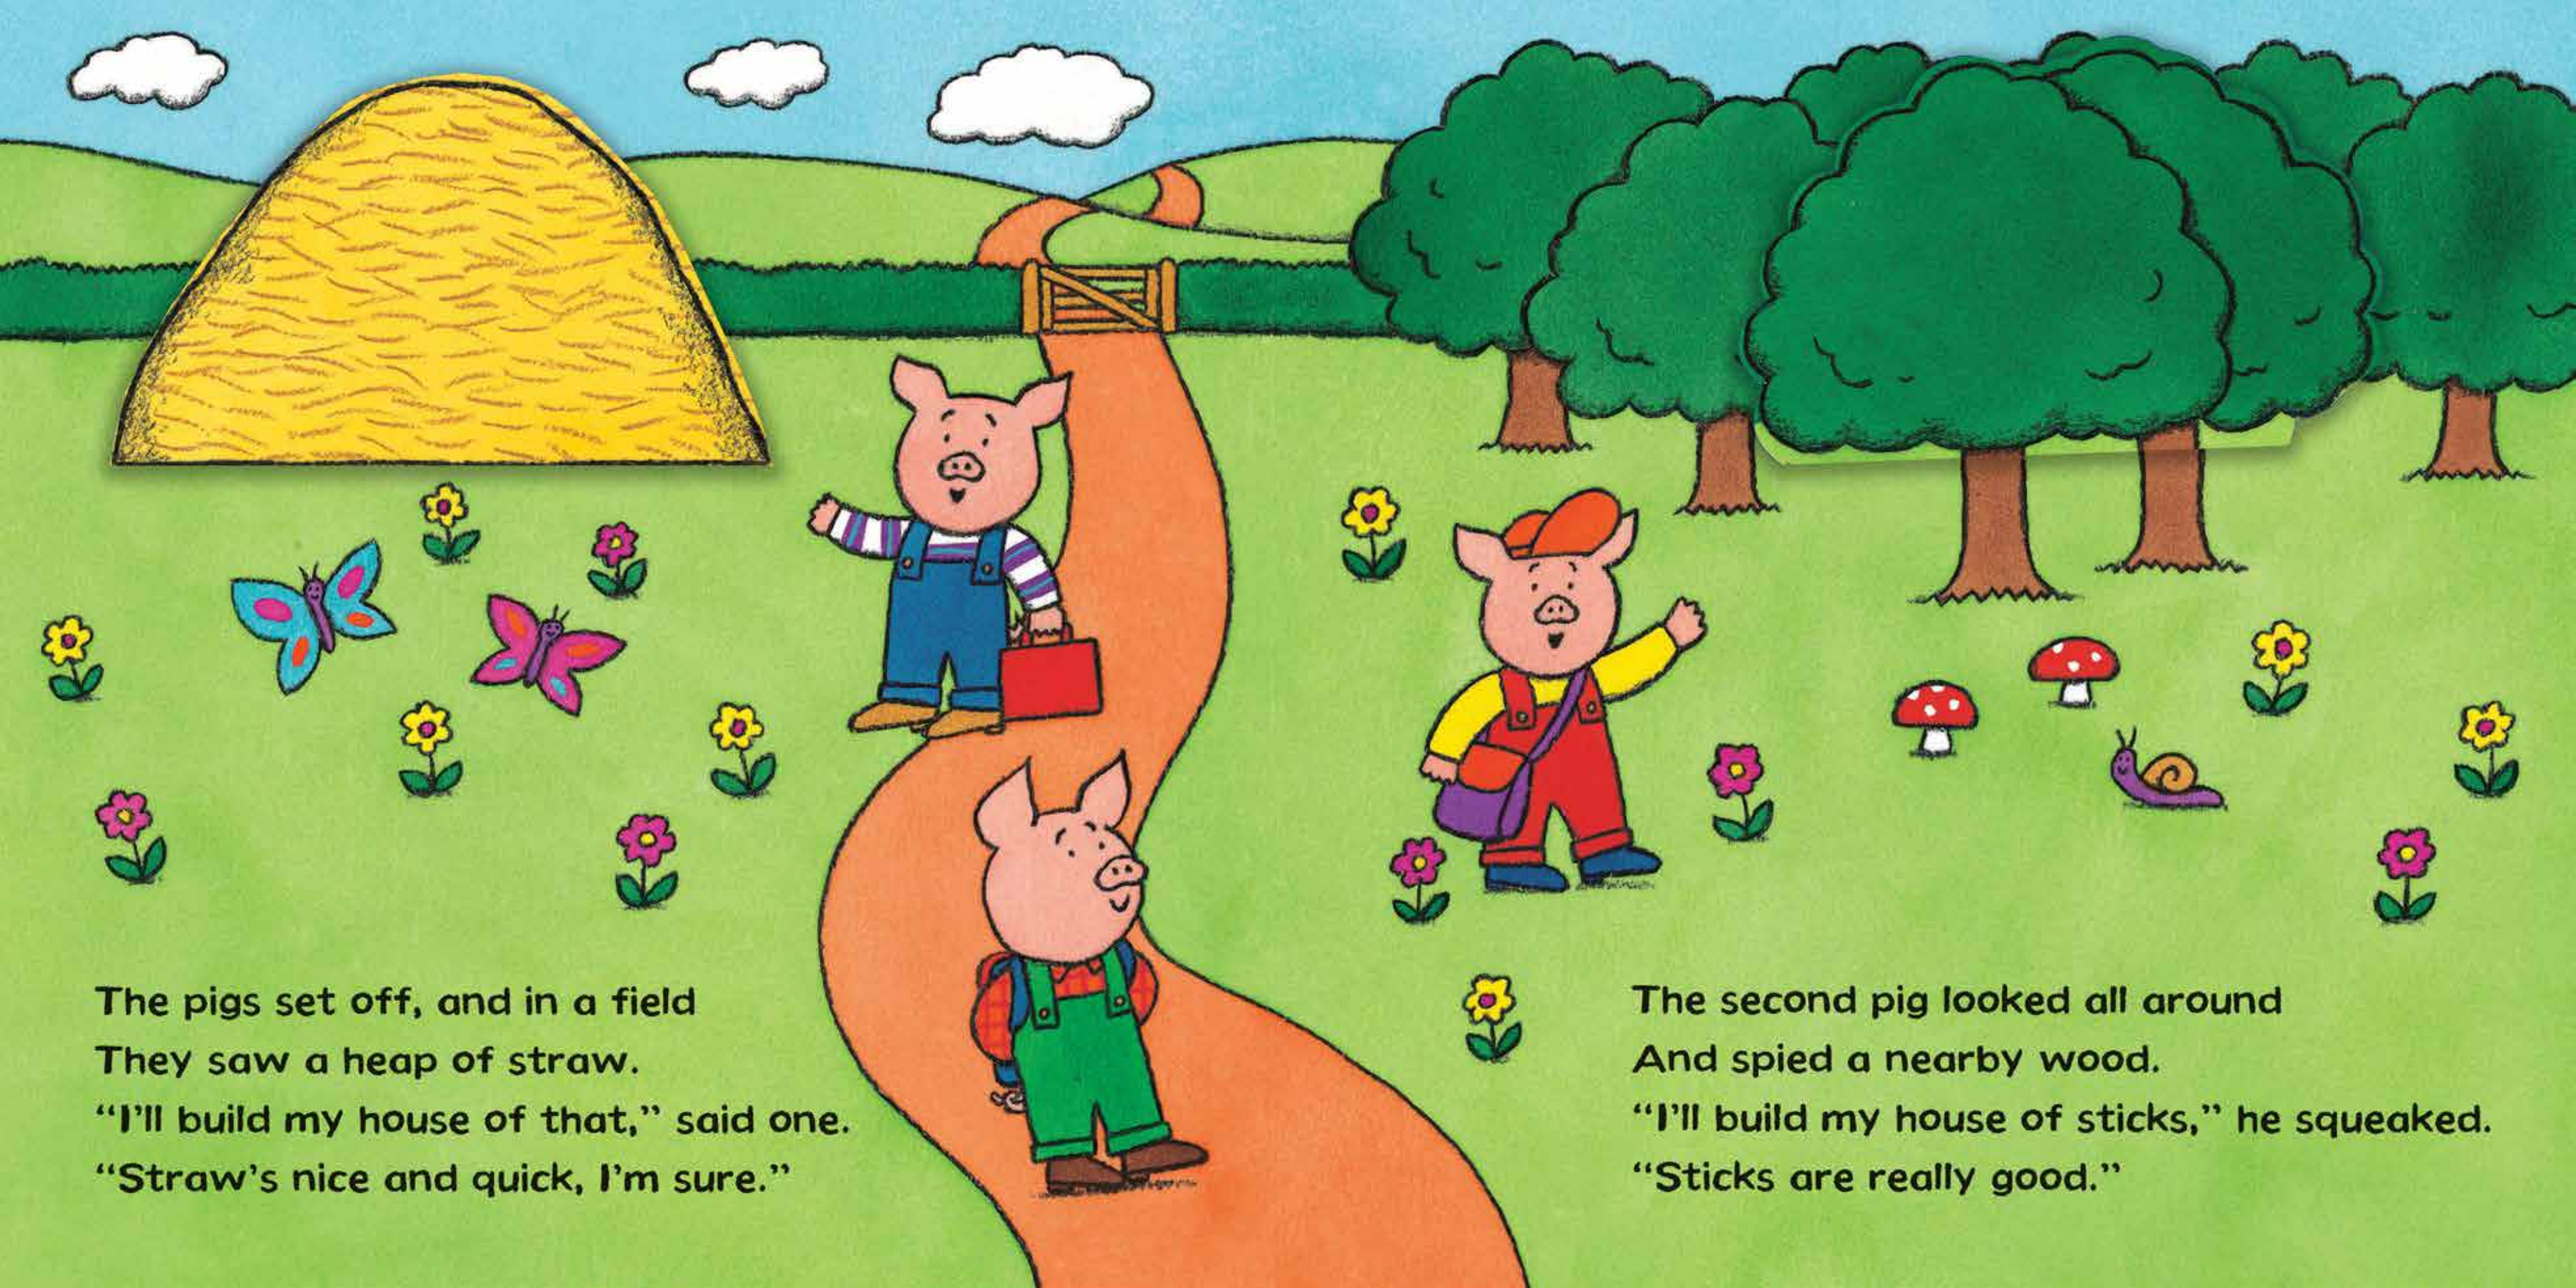

The three little pigs liked living at home
Although the house was small,
But when new babies came along
There just wasn't room for them all.

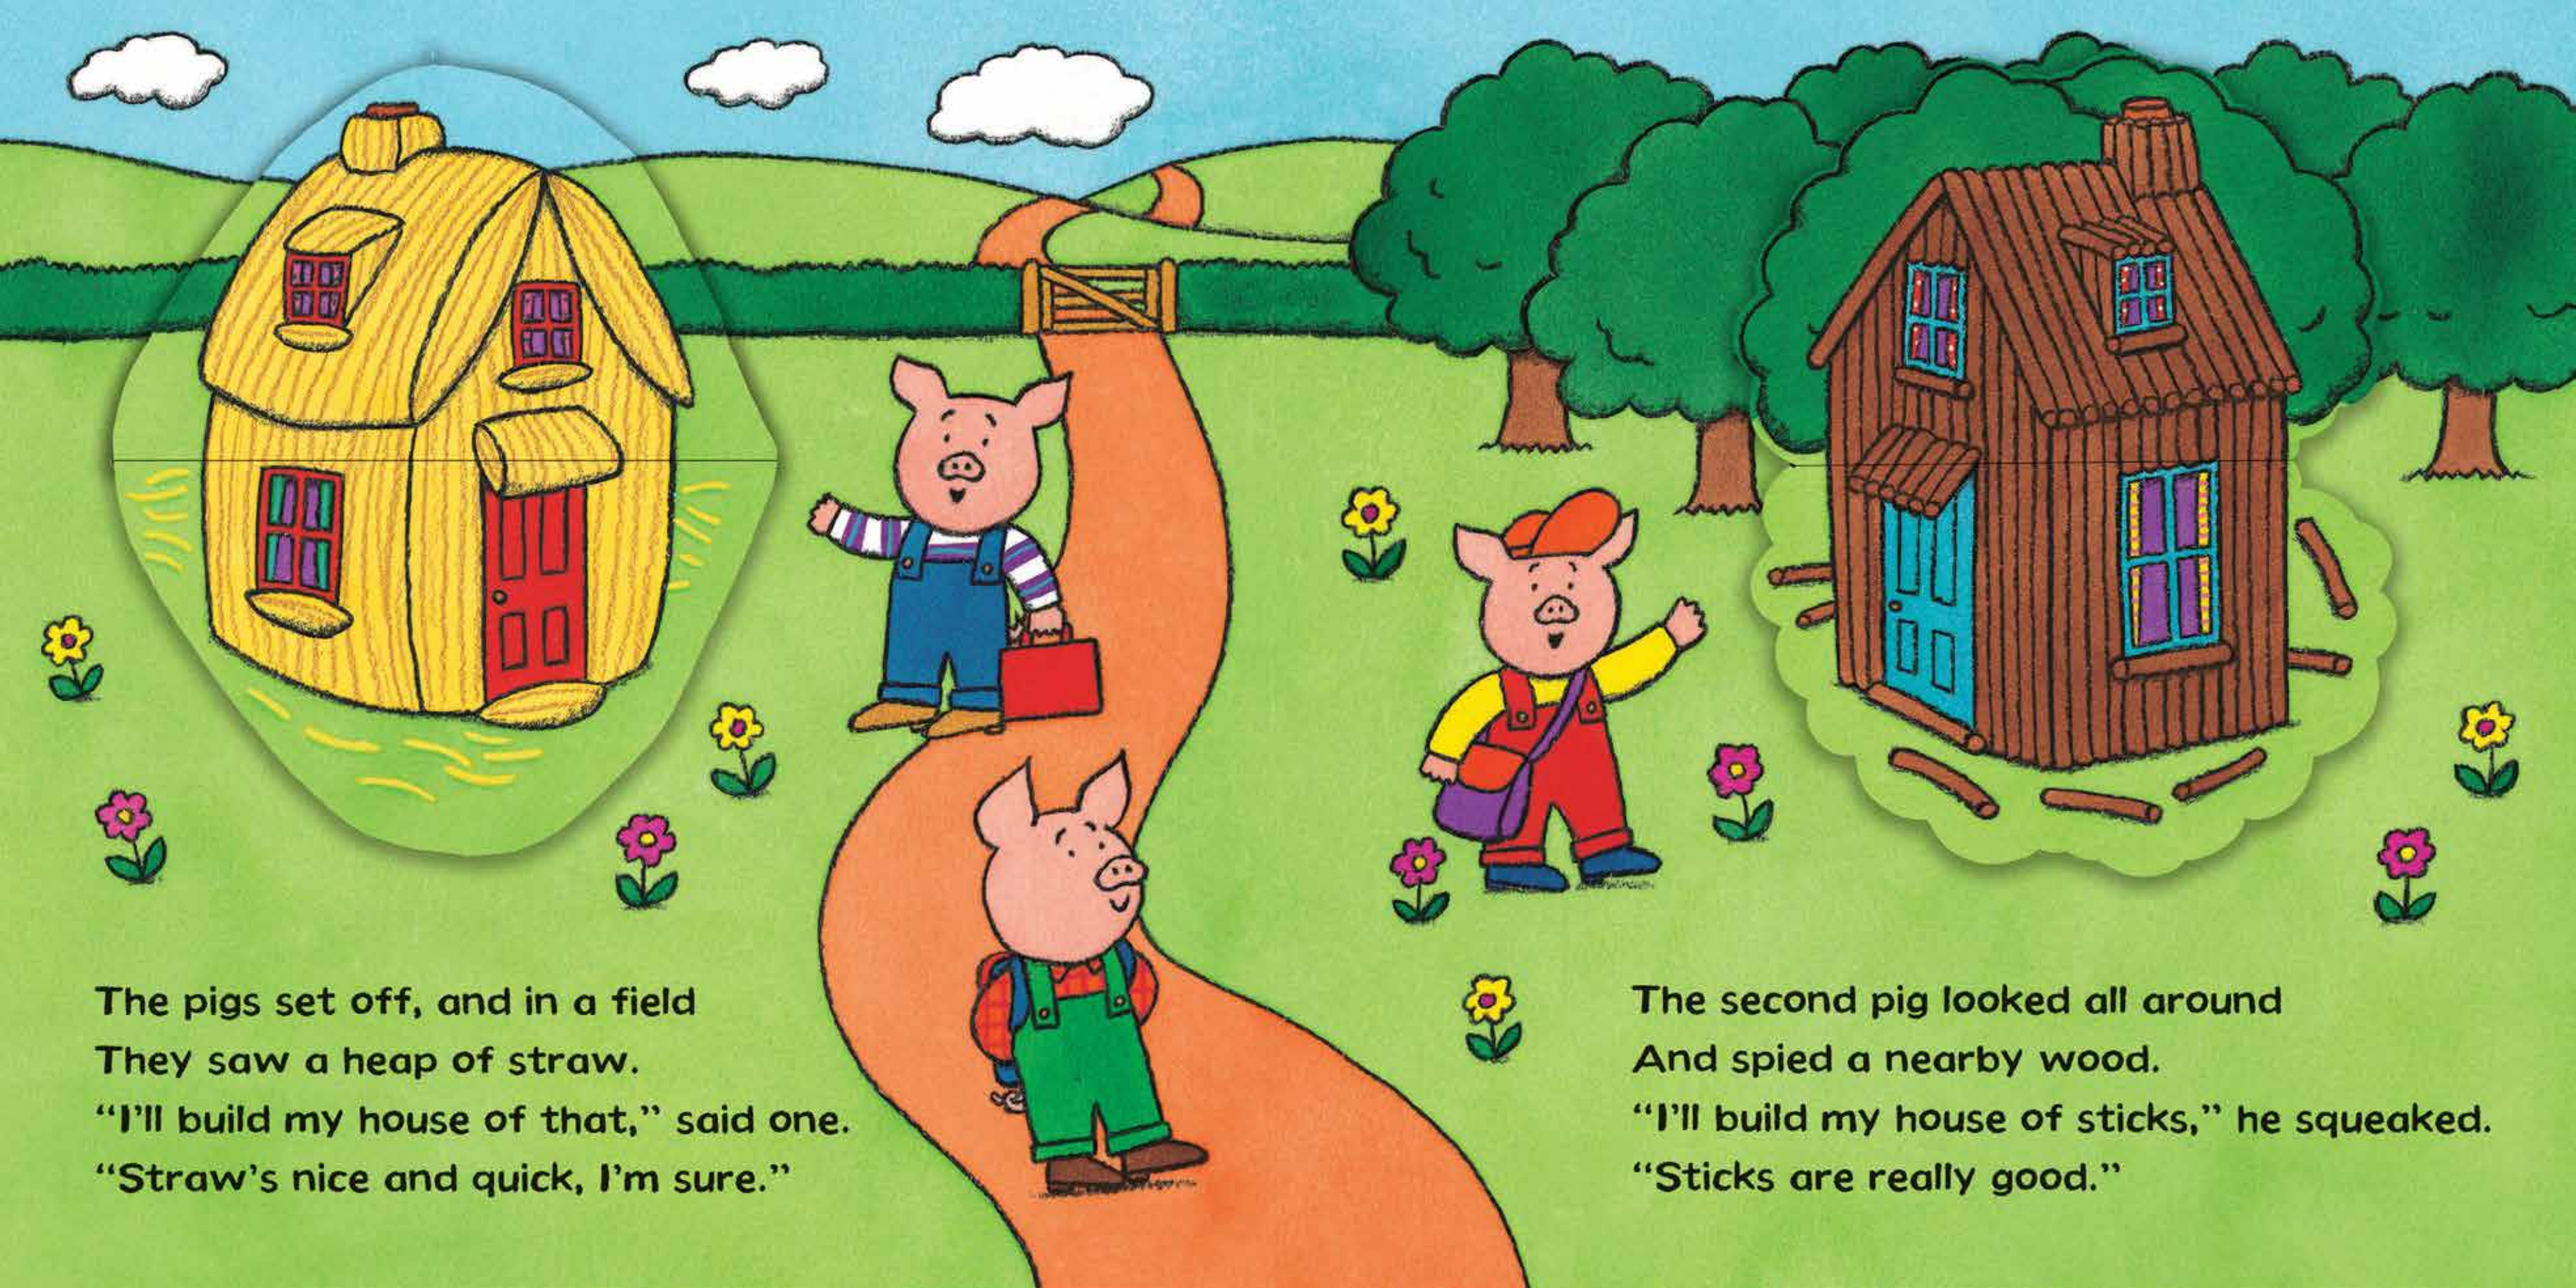

"It's time we left," the piggies said,
"And built homes of our own."
And as they kissed
their mum goodbye,
She said, "Be sure to phone."

The pigs set off, and in a field
They saw a heap of straw.
"I'll build my house of that," said one.
"Straw's nice and quick, I'm sure."

The second pig looked all around
And spied a nearby wood.
"I'll build my house of sticks," he squeaked.
"Sticks are really good."

The pigs set off, and in a field
They saw a heap of straw.
"I'll build my house of that," said one.
"Straw's nice and quick, I'm sure."

The second pig looked all around
And spied a nearby wood.
"I'll build my house of sticks," he squeaked.
"Sticks are really good."