

Lovereading4kids.co.uk is a book website created for parents and children to make choosing books easy and fun

Opening extract from The Detective Dog

Written by Julia Donaldson

Illustrated by Sara Ogilvie

Published by

Macmillan Children's Books

All Text is Copyright © of the Author and/or Illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

Nell shared her house with a person called Peter,
A very nice child, though he could have been neater.
And six-year-old Peter was one of those boys
Who kept on mislaying his clothes and his toys.
Sniff, sniff, sniff! Nose to the ground,
These are the things the Detective Dog found:

The bus in the bowl and the book in the bed,

The sock in the sofa, the shoe in the shed,

The tumbledown teddy, the bounce-away ball.

Nell the Detective discovered them all.

Now Nell did detection from Tuesday till Sunday, But did something totally different each Monday. She found Peter's bag and she tracked down her lead, Then set off for school, where she heard children read.

The children loved reading their stories to Nell,
And Nell loved to listen – and also to smell.
Sniff, sniff, sniff! Mixed in the air
Were plasticine, custard and newly washed hair,
The crusts in the bins and the coats on the hooks,
But the best smell of all was the smell of the books.

