THE WILDEST COWBOY

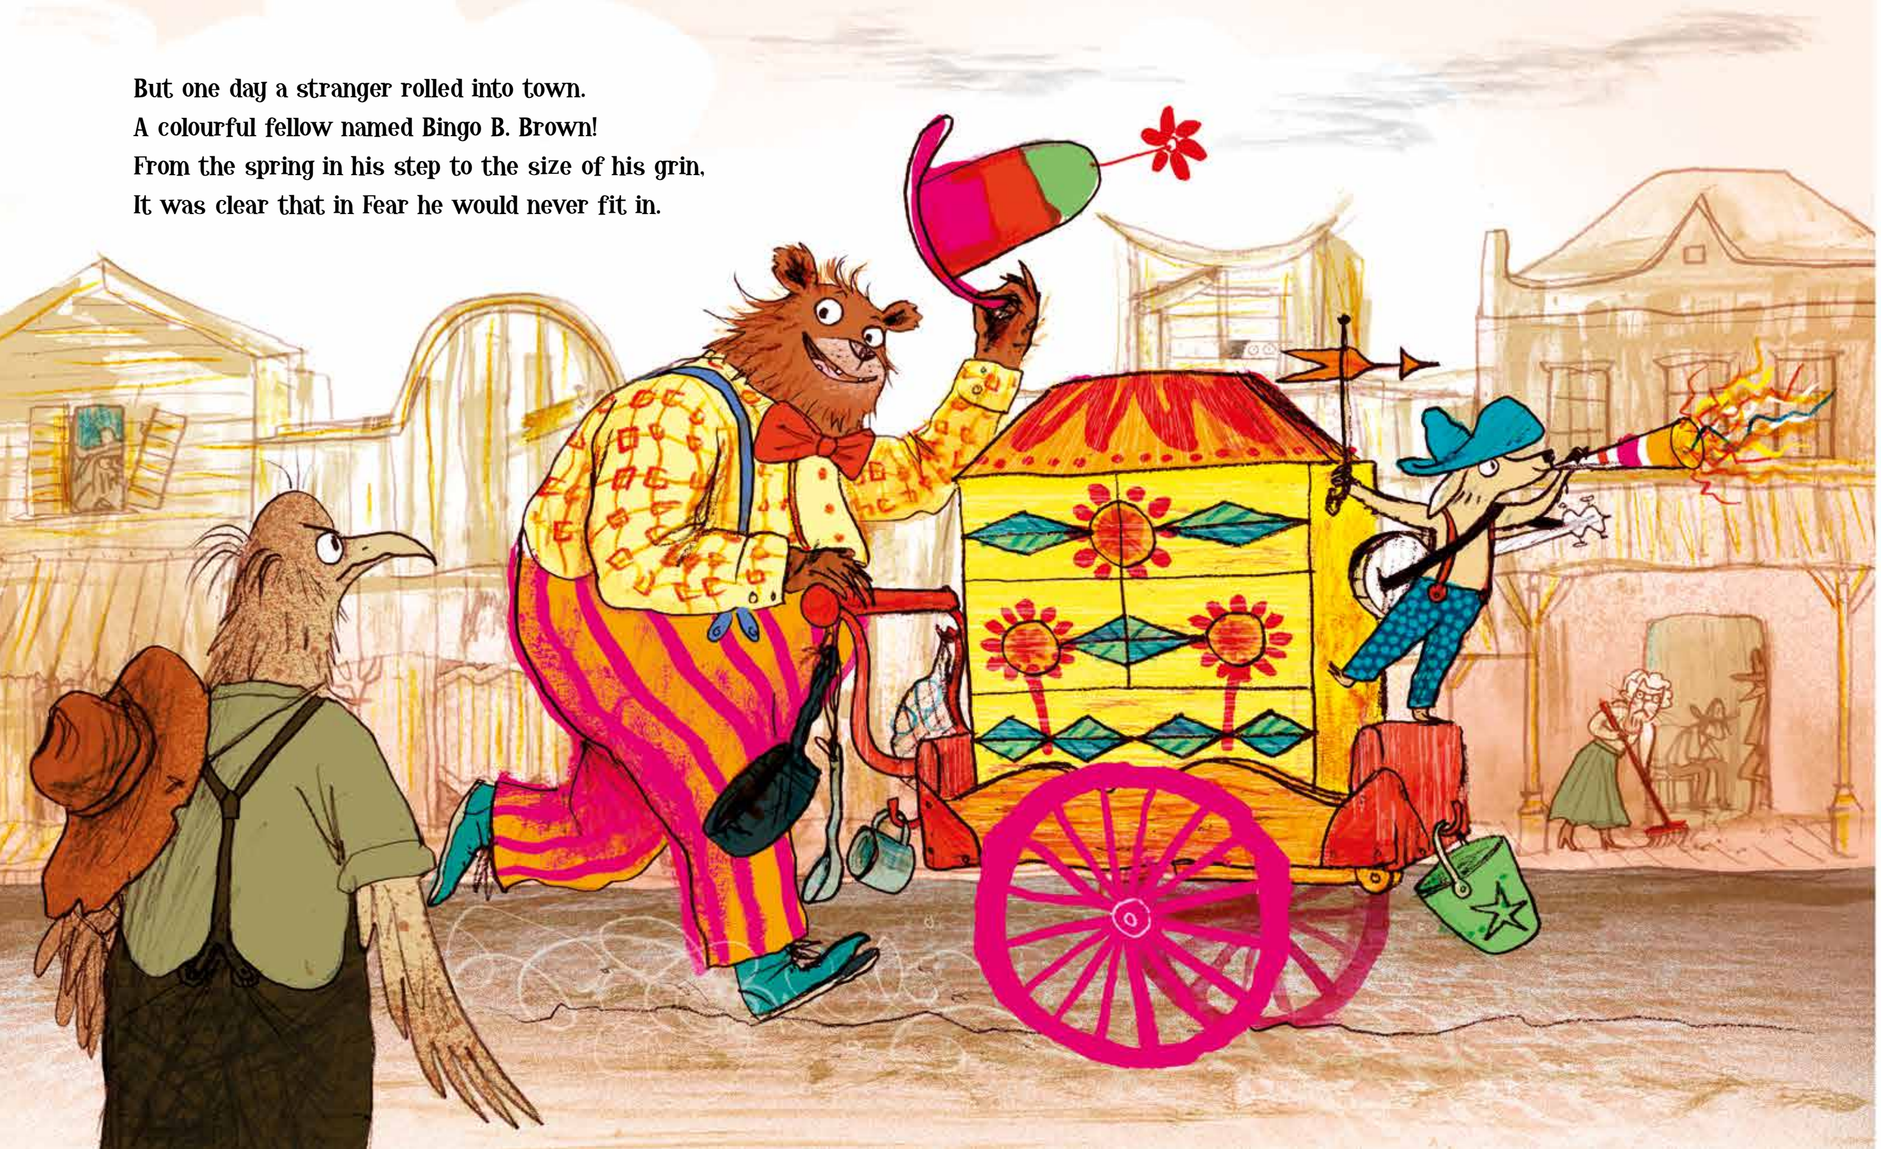

MACMILLAN CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Way out in the West there's a town they call Fear,
And only the roughest and toughest live here.
They never eat treats for they'd sooner chew rocks,
And inside their boots they wear rattlesnake socks.

They spit and they sneer and they snarl all the time,
And they comb out their nits with a live porcupine!
Even the vultures are scared to fly near the wild folks that live in the town they call Fear.

But one day a stranger rolled into town.
A colourful fellow named Bingo B. Brown!
From the spring in his step to the size of his grin,
It was clear that in Fear he would never fit in.

His little dog danced as he started to sing,

"Roll up!
Roll up!

Come see what I bring!"
