Little People, BIG DREAMS

AUDREY HEPBURN

Written by
Mª Isabel Sánchez Vegara

Illustrated by
Amaia Arrazola

Frances Lincoln
Children's Books

Little Audrey lived in a town called Arnhem, in the Netherlands. She dreamed of what she would do when she grew up… Would she become a ballerina – or maybe an actress?

But one day, on her way to ballet class, Audrey saw soldiers on the streets. War had broken out. She watched many families being sent away from their homes – including children just like her.

It was a hard time for Audrey and all the other children.
There was very little food and they were often hungry.
Audrey became very ill.

At last the fighting ended, and Audrey moved to London to study dance. Her teacher said she was too weak from the war to become a ballerina. But Audrey didn't give up...

She decided to act and dance in musicals instead!