Gaspard's nose was cold and wet but the air in his den smelled warm and sweet. It was early evening and still light. He'd been asleep all day and he was hungry.

He leapt over the broken fence, passed the scruffy garages and crept cautiously out into the street.

He wondered if he might see the kind man with the bicycle. Gaspard wasn't frightened of him like he was of some other people.

There were boats EVERYWHERE, brightly painted and decorated with flags. One was a floating bookshop and people were drinking and chatting at little tables.

Gaspard could hear music and there were unfamiliar smells all around: warm, spicy smells and woody, smoky smells.

Gaspard the fox

Come with Gaspard the Fox as he sets out one summer evening in search of supper. On his travels he meets Peter the cat and Finty the dog who help him navigate the local canal with its colourful boats and people – some friendlier than others!

First in a series of urban adventures with Gaspard and his friends by broadcaster Zeb Soanes and artist James Mayhew.

"I loved reading about the adventures of Gaspard the urban fox – surely a prince in disguise? More please." FRANCESCA SIMON, AUTHOR OF THE HORRID HENRY SERIES
