

McTAVISH

GOES WILD

Meg Rosoff

WITH ILLUSTRATIONS BY GRACE EASTON

Praise for Good Dog McTavish

“A hilarious story about a special rescue dog who makes a difference in surprising ways” Scotsman

“Warm family drama full of wry humour and a really excellent dog” Bookseller

“A clever, funny and extremely stylish novella, and a wonderful bit of domestic satire” LoveReading4kids,
Andrea Reece

“Full of Meg’s wry humour and beautiful prose, this is a story for the young and young at heart” Books Are My Bag

“Common sense has rarely been so charmingly conveyed” New Statesman

“This brilliantly charming and heart-warming short novel is full of spark, keen observations and sly humour” Book Trust

“A laugh-aloud, entertaining story with larger-than-life characters, especially the captivating dog. I can’t wait to hear more about him” Primary Times

“What a lovely short story. Recommended to boys and girls, especially those who like dogs” LoveReading4kids reviewer Tomasz, age 11

McTAVISH
GOES
WILD

McTAVISH GOES WILD

Meg Rosoff

With illustrations by Grace Easton

 conkers

First published in 2018 in Great Britain by Barrington Stoke Ltd
18 Walker Street, Edinburgh, EH3 7LP

www.barringtonstoke.co.uk

Text © 2018 Meg Rosoff
Illustrations © 2018 Grace Easton

The moral right of Meg Rosoff and Grace Easton to be identified as the author and illustrator of this work has been asserted in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act, 1988

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced in whole or in any part in any form without the written permission of the publisher

A CIP catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library upon request

ISBN: 978-1-78112-761-2

Printed in Great Britain by Clays Ltd, St Ives plc

CONTENTS

1.	School's Out!	1
2.	The Peachey's Choose a Holiday	6
3.	Going Camping	14
4.	The Peachey's Set Off	20
5.	Faraway Campsite	29
6.	"Do Your Ears Hang Low?"	43
7.	Damp Camp	57
8.	McTavish Leads the Peachey's Astray	69
9.	Follow that Dog!	85
10.	Going Home	99

1

School's Out!

Betty Peachey opened her eyes.

She could hear birds singing. She could see sun shining. The air felt warm. Outside her window, bees buzzed and flowers nodded in the breeze.

She listened carefully. There was no shouting and no rushing about. No one was pounding on the bathroom door or stamping down the stairs. There was no smell of burning toast from the kitchen.

McTAVISH GOES WILD

In the next room, her brother was still asleep.

In the room next to that, her sister was reading the works of a German philosopher whose name no one could spell.

Downstairs, Betty's parents ate breakfast and read the newspaper.

The house was quiet except for the sound of turning pages and munching.

Summer! Betty thought. The first day of the summer holidays is the happiest day of the year. Even happier than Christmas.

Meg Rosoff

Lying in her bed, with the sun streaming in through the window, Betty sighed. I must be the happiest girl in the world, she thought.

Lying on his bed under the stairs, McTavish sighed. I must be the happiest dog in the world, McTavish thought. For there is nothing a dog likes more than to have his entire pack all gathered together peacefully in one place.

McTavish had made a great deal of progress with the Peachey family since deciding to rescue them, but they still required hard work and patience.

McTAVISH GOES WILD

Pa Peachey could be extremely stubborn.

Ollie Peachey could be argumentative. Ava Peachey tended to read too much German philosophy and come up with too many theories.

Only Betty Peachey and her mother were the sort of calm, sensible, well-behaved humans that dogs prefer to share a home with.

Training the Peachey family had been slow and difficult, but he was an intelligent dog and was up to the job. He understood that a family with an uncertain and chaotic past could not be fixed overnight. With a combination of love, patience and consistent handling, he had helped the Peacheys become far more organised and relaxed than when he had first decided to rescue them.

Meg Rosoff

But there was still a long way to go.