

Lighthouse

The light's long finger points into the darkness
To show the rocks and dangers hidden in the murk
"Here!" says the light, "You must take care!"
Winds howl, the storm shrieks on and on.
Beneath the waves, the wrecks call,
But the light speaks endlessly repeating
"Here!", "Here!", "Here!"
Someone watches over you.

Sea Shanty
To roam the seas you catch the wind
Pull now! Away oh!
To catch the wind you raise a sail.
Pull now! Away oh!
To raise a sail you haul a rope.
Pull now! Away oh!
To haul a rope you sing a song
Pull now! Away oh!
To sing a song you catch the wind
Pull now! Away oh!
To catch the wind you roam the seas.
Pull now! Away oh!

Antarctic

On the seabed, starfish shine like flowers.
Penguins shoot up in trails of bubbles,
and flop out, flipper-flapping on the floes.
Leopard seals lurk between ice pancakes
and wild waves worry at the glacier's edge, biting at icebergs that splash in the bay.
