THE ANTLERED SHIP

The day the antlered ship arrived,
Marco wondered about the wide world.

He had so many questions.
Why do some songs make you happy and others make you sad?
Why don't trees ever talk?
How deep does the sun go when it sinks into the sea?

But when he posed these questions to the other foxes, they grew silent. "What does that have to do with chicken stew?" they would ask.

So Marco went down to the harbour without them.
Three deer greeted him at the gangplank.
Marco wasn't surprised to learn that they were lost.

“We hope to hire a seaworthy crew,” explained Sylvia, the captain. “I’m afraid we aren’t very good sailors.”

“I will join you,” Marco said. He thought to himself, I will search the seas for foxes who know the answers to my questions.

A pigeon named Victor also volunteered along with his entire flock. “We want to have adventures,” they cooed.

“Welcome aboard,” Captain Sylvia said. “We’re going to a wonderful island, with tall, sweet grass and short, sweet trees. When we get there, we’ll eat a delectable dinner.”
