

And then everything happened quickly.
The little plant grew taller and taller and branched out.

Buds started to appear, and they soon transformed into hundreds of blossoms. The little plant wasn't so little anymore...
Her friends watched her transformation in amazement.

Through the long, hot days of summer she was the happiest plant
there could be.
All kinds of animals
lived among her
many leaves.
She was full of love and life.

Many weeks and months passed by,
and the days started to get shorter and colder.
Autumn was around the corner.

The leaves of the plant had turned
as golden as the October sky,
and she was gently swaying
in the autumn breeze.

As the leaves were beginning
to wilt and fall to the ground,
something magic happened.

The wind blew all of her seeds...

... far and wide.

And then everything turned grey and cold.
It was time for the final goodbye.
Little Mouse made a wish...
"I wish that I will see you again,"
she whispered with a tear in her eye.
