Lucky Mouse has found four delicious apples for her tea!
But, oh dear, here comes Bear.
He's very hungry, and he really isn't in the mood to share.
Mouse will have to come up with a very cunning plan...

The Mouse's Apples

FRANCES STICKLEY KRISTYNA LITTEN

Her tummy rolled and rumbled

as she searched
along the floor.

So, imagine her surprise to find not one apple, but four!

The first was
red and rosy,
tucked inside
a flower bed.

The next was pink and,

PLOP!

It almost fell
on to her head!

The third was speckled yellow.

She dragged it
from the mud.

SQUELCH

Mouse's whiskers shivered as she gazed up at the bear,
and nervously, she quivered,
"Well, they're mine, but we could... share?"

THE BEAR!

"Apples," boomed the bear,
"are my favourite tasty treat.
And I've been here all winter
without anything to eat."

"SHARE?"
said Bear.
"NO. I DON'T SHARE."

"That isn't fair!"
Mouse said.
"Fair?" said Bear.
"Oh, I don't care."

Mouse sighed and shook her head.
