

On rainy days, Duck liked nothing more than curling up with a good book and a hot drink.

I don't need to go outside, Duck thought. I've got everything I need right here.

And mostly that was true.

SIGH

and found an unexpected visitor,
who was lost. Very lost.

*Well, I can't fix
that tonight,
Duck thought.*

So he popped outside for a bucket . . .

"Why don't you rest here for the night
where it's warm and dry?" asked Duck.

Frog cheerfully agreed, even though Frog liked water very much.

So off they went.

but they couldn't find Frog's home,

They searched
EVERYWHERE . . .

so they stopped for some lunch.

They set off again, but no matter who they asked,

or where they looked,

they STILL couldn't find Frog's home.

