Every summer Mr & Mrs Fairchild take their five children to the seaside.

Their favourite place in the world is Nantucket, a small island famous for its whaling history and wide, sandy beaches, where Granny Fairchild has a summer house.

Granny Fairchild's house sits at the top of a very steep hill overlooking the harbour.

Every morning, the children look through a pair of their Grandpa's huge old wartime binoculars to see what new boats have come into the harbour.

There are so many different types of boats: boats for fishing, sailing, and some huge ones just for doing nothing!
