The story was inspired by the message of resilience and self-esteem in the songs of the singer-songwriter Ajay Mathur.

Koko and the Little Boat

My name is Koko. I live in a small hut in a village by the sea. My father goes out in his boat every day to catch fish.

One day, he came home very late. I asked him what happened and he told me something very sad.

"Koko! There is so much garbage and plastic in the water, that there is no more room for the fish! I am afraid that someday, there will be no more fish at all!"
