The bee, named Baboo,
used to sit on his own.
With no one to play with he danced all alone.

But one day Baboo felt a bit more courageous and went up to talk to a big bee, Ignacious.
He quietly whispered,

"Could I play with you?
I'd love to be friends. . . My name is Baboo."

So they danced all night long by the light of the moon,

as the wind in the trees sang its beautiful tune.
