Margot and Anne quickly learned to speak Dutch, and settled in to their new lives. Anne was full of energy and never stopped asking questions. At school, her chatty, cheeky personality helped her to make dozens of friends.

Anne spent her time just like any other Dutch child – cycling, ice skating, playing ping-pong, looking after her cat, thinking about friendships and fallings-out, visiting ice cream parlours and planning what she'd like for her next birthday ...

