Wolf lived on a plinth in a tired old square on the edge of a vast and magnificent city. Taken for granted and pooped on by Pigeon, she longed to be admired and to find her place amongst the important statues in the City Centre. So, one day . . .

With warmth and humour, this delight of a debut picture book by author and illustrator Rachel Tilda Wolf explores the need to be appreciated and the importance of finding 'home'.

Wolf in the City

LONDON

On the edge of a vast and magnificent city was a tired old square . . .

In the middle of the square lived Wolf.

Every morning was the same: Old Edith fed the pigeons.
The red-faced runner sprinted around the square three times . . .

and Ms Balconi handed Mr Baglioni his favourite drink.

The dog got excited . . .

Pigeon pooped on Wolf.

And the bus into the city
was always late.

Apart from Pigeon, nobody paid much attention to Wolf.

Wolf longed to be amongst the magnificent statues in the city centre. She imagined how adored she would be there . . .

And besides, city statues are far too important to be pooped on!

So, one morning, Wolf decided to go and live with the statues in the city centre, where she truly belonged!
