Chapter ONE

It was Friday afternoon and Miss Cherry had an announcement.

'It's almost the end of term,' she said. 'And we're going to have a school DISCO!'

There was a big cheer from everyone in the class.

'I thought it would be fun for us to have a little competition,' continued

Miss Cherry, 'and see who can think of the best theme for our school disco. We'll make some decorations in art class next week based on that theme!'

An excited chatter rippled round the room.

'You can have the weekend to think about your ideas,' said Miss Cherry. 'I look forward to hearing your suggestions on Monday!

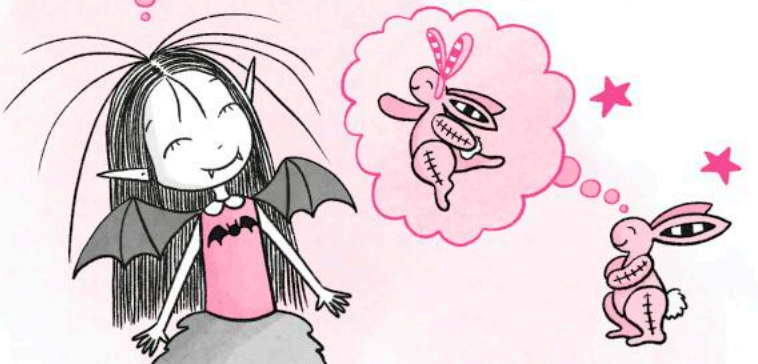

★ ★ ★

As I walked out of school, ideas for the school disco started to ping into my mind. How about a ballet theme? (I love ballet!)

Or a rabbit theme? (We could all wear bunny ears!)

I thought about different ideas all through evening breakfast and all through bath time. I was still thinking of ideas as I was brushing my fangs before bed, when suddenly there came the sound of a tap, tap, tap on the arched window of my little turret bathroom. It made me jump and I almost spat minty foam all over poor Pink Rabbit, who was pretending to brush his own teeth in front of the mirror too. (Pink Rabbit used to be my favourite cuddly toy and my mum magicked him alive with her fairy wand. That's why he doesn't really have teeth, just a cute sewn-on mouth!)

I peered out of the window into the starry darkness and saw an envelope with bat wings fluttering against the glass.

'Bat post!' I cried excitedly.

There is only one person who ever sends me bat post and that's my pen pal, Araminta. I met her at the Annual Vampire Ball a few months ago, and we became friends straight away! We found we had loads in common because we are both half vampire (Araminta's dad is human and my mum is a fairy) and we both go to human schools! We love writing letters to each other and sending them by bat post, especially because we can't meet up very often. Araminta lives miles away from me!
