DIFFERENT
Eva Eland

One day Mia woke up but something didn't feel right, something felt different.

She checked if everything was still in the right place.

But it all seemed to be exactly as it was before.

Nothing had really changed.

She wondered if anyone could see she was different . . .

But nobody seemed to notice.
Nobody seemed to care.

She tried fitting in,

and to be just like the others.
