

Helping you choose books for children

0-5

5-7

7-9

9-12

12+

Opening extract from
Tim and Tig

Written by Victor Kelleher

Published by
Happy Cat

All text is copyright of the author and illustrator

Please print off and read at your leisure.

For Scott with my love. J. W.

Published by
Happy Cat Books
An imprint of Catnip Publishing Ltd
14 Greville Street
London EC1N 8SB

First published by Penguin Books, Australia, 2007

This edition first published 2008
1 3 5 7 9 10 8 6 4 2

Text copyright © Victor Kelleher, 2007
Illustrations copyright © Judy Watson, 2007

The moral rights of the author and illustrator have been asserted

All rights reserved

A CIP catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

ISBN 978-1-905117-81-9

Printed in Poland

www.catnippublishing.co.uk

CHAPTER ONE

Tim was given lots of presents for his birthday. The best one of all came from Aunt Ethel.

‘Here,’ she said, and she handed Tim a very large kitten.

He loved it. So did Mum and Dad. They loved its orange and black stripes,

and its big floppy paws.

‘A word of advice,’ said
Aunt Ethel, who was bossy.

‘Never feed it any meat.

Dry cat food is best.’

‘Nonsense,’ said Dad. ‘A growing kitten needs meat.’

Aunt Ethel didn’t like being contradicted. ‘Don’t say you weren’t warned!’ she said, and she walked off in a huff.

Nobody noticed. They were too interested in the kitten.

‘I’ll call him Tig,’ Tim said.

‘G-G-G-R-O-W-L,’ Tig said, biting a hole in the tablecloth.

‘The poor dear,’ Mum

said. 'He must be hungry.'

Tig bit a hole in the armchair.

‘Famished, by the looks of him,’ Dad said.

‘Got anything for his tea?’
Tim asked.

‘I have just the thing,’
Mum said.

She went to the fridge and took out a dish of raw meat.