'Are you a witch, Mum?'
asked Jimmy one day.
'Never you mind, love,'
was all she would say.

Jimmy was worried.
He'd recently learned
That his mother was possibly one who had
'turned'.

So on Saturday, late, when he should be in bed, Jimmy drew back the curtains a little instead.
He peered through the darkness then leapt back in fright
As a witch on a broomstick zoomed past in the night.

Jimmy froze in his slippers a second or two,

feeling very confused.

Well, what would you do,

if a witch on a broom flew by,

under your nose,

Waved

at you,

winked

at you,

struck a

cool pose,

In pink stripy stockings,

a big pointy hat,

And sitting behind her

was Tiddles,

your cat?
