Goldilocks and the Three Bears

Goldilocks lived in a house that was not like other houses. It had two wheels. It was pulled by a car. It was a caravan!

Her mum and dad worked in a circus.

One evening, the circus stopped at the edge of a big forest. The show was about to start.

"Can I go and pick some flowers from over there in the trees?" asked Goldilocks.

"Yes, but stay on the path," said her mum. "That way, you can just turn around and follow it back to the caravan."

"I promise," said Goldilocks. And off she went.

... a large table with three chairs around it: a big chair, a medium chair and a very little chair.

In front of each chair was a bowl of porridge: a big bowl in front of the big chair, a medium bowl in front of the medium chair, and a very little bowl in front of the very little chair.

The porridge smelled wonderful. And Goldilocks was very hungry. She pushed open the door, and went inside.
