Mrs MacCready was ever so greedy
she did nothing else but EAT.
Fish fingers and chips, apples with pips, plates FULL of succulent meat.

Bacon and ham, GOBBLED with jam, brown eggs scrambled or fried.
All sorts of berries, especially cherries
even with WORMS inside.

An indian curry she ate in a HURRY accompanied by chutney and rice.
A pink wobbly jelly SLID down to her belly, followed by sweet sugar mice.

Hot spicy mustard and bright yellow CUSTARD,
a man made of warm gingerbread.
She loved his cute nose and sweet little toes,
but FIRST she would bite off his head.

Roast potatoes and pork PILED high on her fork
she popped in her mouth to chew, with MUSHY green peas and smelly old cheese
she licked her plate clean, wouldn't you?

When in the right mood her favourite food was chocolate cake covered in CREAM, with strawberries on top and a big glass of pop,
it MADE all her neighbours scream.

'Mrs MacCready, you're far too GREEDY, please find something else to do,
like play in the park or HUNT after dark,
it's really much better for you.'
